“ I am so saddened by Dwight's passing. I had talked with him by phone a few months ago. We were discussing working on music together this year. I knew Dwight when he lived in NYC. He worked on music along side Michael Kott for a performance of mine. He was so wonderful and generous, as was Michael. Their work on the music raised my work to a new level. I am so sad he is no longer with us. I am overwhelmed with sadness that this truly amazing musician and human has gone. I just found out when I tried to call him today and his phone was disconnected. I am so sad, so very very sad. Julia Heyward

I had not thought about Dwight in years. Very saddened to learn he had passed over a year ago. I still remember Dwight's old "Earwaves" program on KUNM. While the experimental music he played on this program was a little too much for me to handle, my fondest memories of Dwight was when he ran the old Budget Record & Tapes location, on Eubank, near Candelaria. Dwight's awareness of music on the fringes made this store one of the most remarkable record stores I have ever been in, in nearly six decades of digging. The amount of new music I was introduced to in this store could not be measured. It was only years later, that I learned of Dwight's impact on the New Mexico music scene. Dwight is sorely missed, and his passing left a tremendous hole in the music scene in New Mexico, that can never be filled. :(

Dwight was the master of experimental radio. I was already a devoted listener to Earwaves, when I began sending him recordings of my "stranger and stranger" (his quote) music. He became a big supporter of my work. For giving it an ever-widening audience, I am forever grateful.

I remember having my cassette recorder ready to record each of his shows; I still have all those tapes, and I still listen to them on occasion. I've just learned of his passing and am so saddened. My genuine condolences to his family and loved ones.

Dwight will be missed.
