“ Mollie and I grew up together going back and forth between the farms through the fields. We spent many hours at one home or the other. I have many fond memories of her and have always treasured the time we got to spend together. Grandpa Osborne could remember the name of his grand son but he used to call us girls "girlie" as he had problems remembering our names. Grandpa was very fond of us girls and often took us to his melon patch for a slice of melon or a nice red tomato and always told us to get a little dish of sugar for the tomato or the rhubarb. He always called that pie plant. We girls were left alone while our parents worked and we spent many hours together with grandpa. I will miss her very much and her Christmas cards were always the first ones we got at Christmas time. Loving thoughts and prayers are sent to the family.
